An Asterik (*) following the score denotes a tie that was broken by the tie breaking method listed below

Ties will be broken and a winner will be determined on the basis of the best score for the last nine holes played, last six holes played, last three holes played, and finally the 18th hole played of the competition course (in competitions with a multiple tee start, the last nine holes, last six holes, etc. is considered to be holes #10-18, 13-18, etc.). If a tie still exists, a winner will be determined with the same format on the front nine of the competition course. If a tie still exists, a winner will be determined on the basis of the best score made beginning on the lowest handicap allocation hole through the highest allocation handicap hole. If these tie-breaking methods do not produce a winner, a coin toss will break the tie.
